

The disturbing final chapter in the award-winning Redneck Apocalypse series. The last battle for Earth is here. Rivers of blood are going to flow. Anyone who doesn't die in the first hemorrhage is going to wish they had. What readers are saying about the Redneck Apocalypse series: It is gritty. It is in your face. And it is fantastic. Ever wondered what the end of the world would look like? Just turn the page. ~Daisy C. Im still reeling from this unbelievable experience and my body is slowly recovering from the rush. What a buzz! 5 stars, and Ill throw in the moon and the sun too! ~Silvia Twin Peaks meets Supernatural meets American Horror Story ~Philip A. McClimon, author of the Human Extinction Level Loss series Superbly well written and flawlessly edited; its a genuine pleasure to read. The action starts right from the git-go and never lets up. ~schutzenschnurr Its distinct. Its engrossing. Its genuinely strange (in the haunting, striking good way.) Many times I felt like I could feel the force, the sheer desperation with which this was imagined. Under the surface, there is such intensity, angst and anguish. ~Tim McBain, co-author of the Awake in the Dark series Deep, interesting characters whose scars, tats, and broken bones mesh to form an odd kind of pre-apocalyptic beauty... ~DJ Bodden, author of The Black Year Saga I would not recommend this book unless you mentally prepare yourself for a bumpy, twisted ride, filled with a huge heaping of soul-sucking darkness, but if you can take it, this book is well worth reading. ~James Hunter, author of the Yancy Lazarus novels
