

An appropriate title for this second volume of Honors in Practice would be "Innovations in Honors." The essays describe new programs, initiatives, and strategies from Chile as well as from numerous regions and types of institutions within the United States. Readers can find here a great plenty of ideas that might thrive in their own institutions while, at the same time, learning about faraway practices and programs. Even a random reader who happened upon this volume and knew nothing of honors education would find much to excite the imagination. A reader who is deeply involved in honors will be able to put this excitement into action with adjustments large or small to an existing honors program or college.
