

Rex and Janet Lee have had lives filled with extraordinary experiences. From Rex's nomination as U.S. Solicitor General to his presidency of Brigham Young University, he was involved with the nation's legal and educational elite. And his wife, Janet, has been integral to his success. Perhaps their most interesting experiences together, however, have centered on the health challenges Rex had for nearly a decade. Reading this unusual book is like sitting in Rex and Janet's living room and listening to them take turns explaining how they dealt with the discovery of Rex's cancers, how they supported and encouraged each other and their children, and how they continued to work at maintaining optimism and enjoying each additional day of Rex's life. Marathon of Faith is not merely a book about cancer, nor is it just about adversity, suffering, or death. Rather, says Janet Lee, it is a book about the joy that can be found in all of life. Shortly before Marathon of Faith went to press, Rex passed away.

Here, we see an image of a long-endurance race, a marathon of faith. For followers of Jesus, trusting in Christ is not a yard dash. Trusting in.

After thoroughly listing the role models of faith in Hebrews 11, the author then encourages us to follow their example: Therefore, since we are.

After the thorough listing of faith role models in Hebrews 11, the author then encourages us to follow their example in Hebrews Therefore. For many years I've jogged for exercise, but I've never run a marathon. My knees have never been strong enough to endure that long of a race. I have run a.
